NEW YORK--(BUSINESS WIRE)--Dec. 11, 2023-- Today Evernow, the leading digital care platform for women in perimenopause, menopause, and beyond, and Talkspace, the leading online behavioral health company, announced a strategic partnership to support their respective growing member base of 40+ women with mental health services and resources during this pivotal life stage. In fact, Evernow, which has amassed the world's largest database of knowledge in perimenopause and menopause, recently found that 61.4% of women reported feeling symptoms of anxiety and/or depression.

"Mental health challenges and menopause are inextricably linked, with rates of anxiety and depression doubling during this stage of life ¹. Between the demands they face at work, in life, parenting, and caring for aging parents, hormonal shifts are often compounding/amplifying these concerns, so we are aligning with Talkspace to help women better identify and care for their needs," said Dr. Alicia Jackson, CEO & Founder at Evernow.

This partnership gives Evernow members free access to mental health resources through Talkspace's self-guided program as a part of any multi-month plan, furthering Evernow's ability to fully address mental health needs. Talkspace's self-guided app contains 400+ self-guided therapy sessions, which are a proven blend of psychoeducation, reflections, exercises, and journaling. These sessions cover a wide variety of topics, from depression to anxiety, to parenting, to relationship issues as well as live and on-demand workshops and classes, each guided by licensed therapists, including content relevant for women navigating menopause/perimenopause.

Talkspace providers will now have resources and reference materials provided by Evernow, expanding their toolkit and allowing them to better navigate care for their clients going through hormonal shifts associated with menopause, with Talkspace members being able to leverage a $50 discount applied to any of Evernow's care plans.

Finally, with nearly 45% of working women in the U.S. over the age of 45, menopause care is becoming a must-have workplace benefit. Over 85% of respondents in a recent survey said that offering a menopause benefit would improve their work productivity, satisfaction, well-being, or likelihood for retention.

"We are now looking to bring clients a compelling offering that supports women during this important stage in their healthcare journey and allows them to offer specialized care in an accessible way."
